

I STRONGLY disagree with Verizon's (and other carriers') stance that cell phone numbers not be transferable between carriers. I support the FCC's position that cell phone numbers be transferable between carriers, so that if I want to switch carriers, I can take my telephone number with me (like regular phone numbers). By not allowing this, it becomes difficult to switch carriers. I am a contractor and my cell phone number has been distributed to contacts; it is valuable and hard to change. This ties me to my carrier and they know that.
